Editorial Review

Review
This new edition...is the best publication I have read on the subject. --Thomas H. Seymour, P.E. --
Professional Safety Magazine, June 2001

About the Author
J. Nigel Ellis, Ph.D., PE, CPE, CSP, has served on many national standards committees on fall protection including ANSI Z359.1--Personal Fall Arrest Systems, and ANSI A10.32--Fall Protection Equipment in Construction. He is past chairman of the Fall Protection Group of the Industrial Safety Equipment Association. In addition, he has authored the chapter on fall protection in Best's Safety Directory since 1973.

Dr. Ellis has testified at OSHA hearings on fall protection in the oil and gas drilling and servicing industries, power platforms used for exterior building maintenance, and in construction, confined space entry, and steel erection. He helped develop the Occupational Safety and Health Adminstration's standards on fall protection and emergency descent.

Industrial falls are the number one cause of on-site, occupational fatalities in the United States today. Yet personal fall protection is the most underdeveloped safety program resource in the country.

There are two types of elevated fall exposure: during work and during access or exit. Fall hazards are not always obvious. Fall protection must be planned; it cannot be done on the spur of the moment. This edition is for those striving for effective fall protection.

Occupational fall prtoection is the backup system planned for a worker who could lose her or her balance at a height; its purpose is to eliminate or control injury potential.

Blanche Ball:

As a college student exactly feel bored to reading. If their teacher expected them to go to the library as well as to make summary for some e-book, they are complained. Just very little students that has reading's soul or real their pastime. They just do what the educator want, like asked to go to the library. They go to right now there but nothing reading critically. Any students feel that reading through is not important, boring in addition to can't see colorful images on there. Yeah, it is to become complicated. Book is very important for yourself. As we know that on this age, many ways to get whatever we want. Likewise word says, ways to reach Chinese's country. Therefore this Introduction to Fall Protection can make you experience more interested to read.
