The Stable Boy By Rick Auterson

Jack Anderson was born into poverty in 1954 to teenage parents and it has always been just the three of them, Jack, his mother and his father, living in isolation on an unnamed gravel road. He works as a stable boy for Welsh Farms, a huge operation that raises cattle and corn. Susan Welsh is fifteen years old; she is beautiful, spoiled and promiscuous. She saw Jack fight off two grown men and thinking that there was a bad boy right out of West Side Story under her very nose she goes to the horse pasture thinking that she will have an enjoyable little brush with danger, toy with him, deny him and then discard him. It will be great fun and make terrific gossip for her girlfriends; he had already made her a minor celebrity just because she knows his name. What happens next, is anyone's guess.
