AT WAR:

The love of my life is dead.

Is there really a reason to live anymore?

I'm a war veteran who has suffered great tragedies overseas. Not only have I lost my right foot, but I have also lost my wife. Both at the hands of terrorists. Recurrent nightmares, a dead end job, and a painful limp are all I have left. Not much of a reason to wake up in the morning if you ask me. I'm struggling to carry on in this very lonely excuse of a life. The only reason I'm still swimming is because I have my best friend, Tucker, and my sister, Lizette, keeping me afloat.

Tucker has been my saving grace. I would not be here if it weren't for him…literally. We have become practically inseparable since moving in together. And then, out of nowhere, there are these feelings and emotions. The kind that I haven't felt in years; not since I lost the love of my life. The kind that I'm not sure I can handle, or even want to. But they have started wrapping around my broken and shattered heart, trying to mend it - whether I'm ready for it or not. Only they are not for a woman as you would expect, but for the man suddenly sharing my bed.

Am I ready to give love another go? I'm not so sure that I have it in me.

But then again, I'm tired of being at war.

WAR TORN:

My life has been completely turned around with the help of my boyfriend and best friend, Tucker.

My depression is under control.

I'm not having nightmares or flashbacks anymore.

My sister is having a baby.

Life with Tucker is great…

Or is it? Everything seems to be going so well, almost too well.

You know how people say that the best things in life are worth fighting for? Well, I believe that with my whole heart. But how do you fight for something when it gets ripped away from you? Just…torn right out of your hands, leaving you with nothing. You would think that losing my wife was the worst thing that could happen to me.

AT PEACE:

I messed up…

Big time.

Don't think that I don't know this. I'm sure you probably all hate me right now, but I did what I thought I needed to do to try and salvage what is left of my family.

Will I lose Dennis forever because of my own stupidity? God, I hope not.

I will try my damnedest to make this up to him, even if that means begging on my hands and knees. He is it for me…my forever, and I will do whatever it takes to prove it to him.

Now, if I could just get him to talk to me…

*Warning: For mature audiences only. Contains some sensitive situations and graphic m/m sex scenes. Please remember that this is a work of fiction and comes from my own imagination.
